GENERAL INFORMATION

Hugh Rader, originally from Macon, GA, attended Georgia College and State University. At the age of 24, Hugh moved to Montpelier, Vermont to attend New England Culinary Institute. He moved to Boston after graduating to be a chef at the acclaimed Ritz Carlton. He later moved to California’s Napa Valley where he worked at Bouchon, The French Laundry, and Francis Ford Copola’s winery, Niebaum Copola.

After deciding to make a career move, he relocated to San Francisco to attend City College of San Francisco where he majored in architecture. Hugh returned to Atlanta in September, 2006. Upon his return, he carried his passion for architecture into the world of commercial real estate.

In less than three years, Hugh has closed over 35 transactions, has exclusively represented Landlords for over 100,000 SF of lease property and has gained a large quantity of business due to his great knowledge of the Atlanta commercial real estate market.

While at Richard Bowers & Co., Hugh has used his strong work ethic and taken advantage of the down economy and diversified his strategies to get deals done. Finding great opportunities for clients is key in this challenging market, and finding solutions has always been one of Hugh’s greatest attributes.

CLIENT TESTIMONIALS

“Hugh was perfect! He went above and beyond. I developed a good, personal relationship with him.”

~ Wes Toons, Environmental Recovery Corporation

“Hugh Rader has been persistent in his approach, working tirelessly to locate a Nationwide client to lease our property. Thanks to his efforts, we have a five year contract in place during this difficult economy. Hugh has also been very successful in bringing in potential clients for the sale of the property. His professionalism and sincerity has made him a very valuable real estate agent.”

~ Sam Kumar, CEO Manasa Properties, LLC
